Bury college is offering the specialism 'Assisting Teaching' and 'Early Years Educator'

Course overview

Your studies will focus on learning to support the early years practitioner to children's learning in either small groups or individually, to ensure that children are supported to make progress in their development and have their needs met in a setting. You will also need to be a good role model by promoting positive values and behaviours, act with honesty and integrity, take part in all activities and contribute to the planning, activities and routines.

Career opportunities may include:

Early years is an excellent progression route for becoming a teacher or an Early Years Practitioner (EYP) in a range of settings.

Course structure

You will develop your knowledge and understanding in the following core areas:

- Wider Context of Childcare and Education
- Child Development
- Supporting Education
- Safeguarding, Health and Safety, and Wellbeing
- Behaviour
- Observation and Assessment
- Equality and Diversity
- Special Educational Needs and Disability
- Language Acquisition (including English)
- Parents, Families and Carers
- Working with Others
- Reflective Practice

Your studies will focus on:

- How to support the staff to enhance children's education, individually and in groups
- Planning, providing, and reviewing activities and opportunities in collaboration with staff and other adults
- Safeguarding and promoting the health, safety and wellbeing of children and young people
- Recognising, adapting and responding to individual children's needs, including those with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND), to support development and access the EYFS.

Work experience – Industry Placement

The T- Level qualification includes work experience; a proportion of the course will be spent working directly with children in an early years setting. This will provide you with a valuable industry placement which will help you prepare for your next step going into the workplace or progressing on to Higher Education (university).

How will the T-Level course be assessed?

You will sit two externally-set exams and an 'Employer Set Project' at the end of the first academic year to test your understanding of the subject. At the end of the second academic year, you will undertake synoptic assignments which will demonstrate the skills gained through your work placement. Whilst on work placement, you will be visited by your assessor or personal tutor to see how you are progressing and to assess the skills you have gained.

Have a look at this sample assessment - it will help you see how one aspect of how the course is assessed, this is a written exam style question.

Case Study: Learning and development

Read the case study below and then discuss how you would respond in your role as an EYP.

You are working in a nursery in the preschool room

You have been asked to support Josh on a one to one basis as Josh has Autism.

You have observed that Josh does not manage change well and can become easily upset if regular routines are disrupted. He has difficulty separating from his Childminder in the mornings and will often cry when she leaves.

The room leader has asked you to prepare for a meeting with the SENDCo and Josh's parents. The aim of the meeting is to plan how to meet Josh's individual needs and support him to feel more settled in nursery

Your meeting preparation should be based on the information you have available.

In your response, you should:

- discuss and explain the possible contributing reasons for Josh's behaviour, taking into account his age and stage of development
- explain and justify approaches you might take to support Josh to feel more settled when he arrives in the morning
- discuss how you might work with parents and analyse the benefits of working in partnership with his parents.
- evaluate a range of activities and resources to support Josh to effectively feel more settled in the setting.

What skills and qualities are needed to work with children and progress to Higher Education?

Can you identify the skills and qualities needed whilst studying towards a T-Level qualification?

Skills needed to be successful on a T-Level qualification

I have good communication skills

Qualities needed to be successful on a T-Level qualification

I am a caring person

Can you explain why these skills and qualities are essential when working with children and working towards a T-Level qualification?

Work experience: Industry Placement

On your T-Level course you will be required to go on work experience to develop your practical skills in a nursery or school setting. This is an important element of your training. Work experience will provide you with all the practical skills you need to become a childcare practitioner.

Watch this you tube clip and hear about the important role practitioners undertake in a typical nursery school setting. (right click, open hyperlink).

Now answer the following questions.....

What different roles can EYP's take on in a nursery or school setting?

Identify the range of activities you might support in a typical day?

List 3 key things you will need to learn on your T Level course to help you become an excellent EYP?

Why do you think this course would be helpful for employment or progression to Higher Education?

This is what our students say about their work experience

Freya says 'It helps me to put theory into practice through hands on learning, enabling me to build positive relationships with the children and I find it rewarding when I can help the children to develop and progress'

Megan says 'work experience is enjoyable because I interact and learn about children's development and the way they see the world. It's also rewarding because I know I am supporting the children with reaching the next steps/milestones in their development'

Sumaya says 'what I enjoy about work experience is that I like looking after the children and playing with them and leading activities'

Jess says 'For my work experience I went to Eagley School House Nursery, I had been there before for volunteering in year 10 and 11. When I was went back this year I enjoyed seeing the staff and children again'

Forest School Activity

You will carry out a task which could be done with children in a forest school environment or a nursery's outdoor area.

You will need:

-A piece of card

-String

-Scissors

-Natural resources

1. Use the scissors to cut small slits along both edges of your cardboard approx 1cm apart
2. Wrap the string around the cardboard, securing it between the slits
3. Gather some of the natural resources
4. Weave the natural resources through the string as shown in the picture

Child Development

One of the most important things you will learn on a childcare course is how a child develops over time. Just think, how much learning and development has taken place, from when a baby is born, through the first 5 years of life?

We refer to this as the age and stage of development and we learn to identify what a child should be able to do at each stage as they grow and develop.

Areas of development

So that we can understand all the different ways in which a child grows and develops we look at the different areas – this is known as the areas of development, we refer to this as PILES to help you remember the different areas:

Physical Intellectual Language Emotional Social

For each area of development provide a definition of what the term means, you can give an example of what the aspect of development relates to.

Area of development	Definition – what does the word mean	Example of the area of development – what can a child do?
PHYSICAL
SOCIAL

Development Timeline

For each of the following ages provide an example of what development milestone a child can achieve.

To help you might want to think about your own development, think back to what you could do at the different ages, you might need to ask a family member to tell you what you could do when you were very young.

Or, you could observe any young family members and see what they can do at the relevant age and stage of development.

	Physical development	Intellectual development	Language development	Social and emotional development
0-1 Years
1-3 years
3-5 years

CREATIVITY

Being creative is an important skill to develop when working with children. You will need to be able to plan and prepare activities and ideas that will support the children in different settings and across the age ranges and. Creative opportunities are an important aspect of children's play and learning. They should be fun and enjoyable but also allow the children to develop new concepts. Creative activities can be provided to support children's learning of number, letters and sounds and the world around them. On your T-Level course and on your industry placement you will be engaging in creative play with the children. Have a go at filling in the chart and then completing an activity planning sheet for a creative activity – you can choose the age range of your activity (between 0-5 years).

Have a go! Plan a suitable creative activity for each of the following age groups.

Include the resources you need and any health and safety considerations you need to make.

Age Range	Creative Activity

Childcare Adventures

Childcare is Everywhere

Be observant – when you are next in the company of young children observe how they interact.

- What speech and language skills do they have?
- How do they interact with others?
- What sort of skills have they developed – think how they play, what do they like?

Things to watch – there are lots of really interesting T.V programmes and documentaries that give you a great insight into children, and how they grow and develop.

- Babies : their wonderful world – BBC. Explores how the first 2 years of life shapes the adults we become. Infancy development/lifestages
- The secret life of 4 and 5 year olds – Channel 4. Great for looking at childhood development/lifestages (especially socialisation skills)

Childcare Adventures

Visiting Formby Beach in the Spring term

We have booked to see The Lion King at The Palace Theatre in November 2022

We went to Blackpool Pleasure Beach in June

We took part in Children In Need

We learnt Forest School skills to support children's development

We dressed up for Comic Relief

In June, we have a celebration to recognise all the childcare students' achievements over the year. We award prizes and say goodbye to students leaving for employment, uni or another course.
